Chadbourne fire brings sawmill work to a halt Repairs now underway

By WENDY HANSCOM

Water damage resulting from a fire early Thursday morning has closed down the P.H. Chadbourne & Co. sawmill for at least a week.

But repair crews will be working overtime this Thanksgiving weekend to get the mill up and running, according to owner Bob Chadbourne.

Thursday's fire destroyed half the roof of the Bethel sawmill, and water damaged much of the mill's equipment and electrical wiring.

"There was limited fire damage to the sawmill building," Chadbourne said. "The largest amount of damage was water damage from trying to extinguish the fire."

"We're replacing the roof, checking electrical equipment, running new wires and replacing electrical equipment as necessary. The sawmill is not operating and I don't expect it will open until at least next Monday. We don't have a definite date yet."

Chadbourne said he is unable to estimate the cost of the repairs. "We're really still in the beginning stages as to assessing the extent of the damage," he said. The building and equipment were insured, he said.

"We're not sure yet what equipment has to be replaced," he said. "There is some electrical equipment that has to be tested and a lot of labor is involved in installing new wire."

Crews will be working through the long Thanksgiving weekend to get the sawmill going, Chadbourne said.

"We may get two shifts going to replace wiring," he said. "We're really still in the beginning stages as to assessing the extent of the damage."

Bethel Fire Chief James Young said no cause for the fire has been determined.

The mill's sprinkler system and nearby company hydrants helped contain damage to the 30-by-70-foot building, Young said.

The alarm was reported at 2:43 a.m. by mill employee Rodney Hanscom, who lives across from the mill and is alerted when the mill's sprinkler system goes off.

The Bethel Fire Department turned out two trucks and 22 men to battle the blaze. A dozen Chadbourne employees also helped fight the fire.

It took firefighters an hour to bring the blaze under control, Young said. Firemen had to pull down insulation and boards in the roof to get at the fire, he said.

Sharing is the spirit of the season

By WENDY HANSCOM

With the holidays fast approaching, several local civic groups and charitable organizations are gearing up to make the season a little brighter for some local families.

By Christmas, many needy families will be struggling with just the expense of living through a Maine winter. Local charities are working to provide some of these families with warm clothing, extra food and presents for children.

All good-will groups depend on the generosity of their members and the public to support their programs. Here is a list of some local organizations trying to make Christmas more merry for financially strapped families and how the community can help.

Christmas for Children

The Bethel Rotary's fifth annual Christmas for Children project takes on the ambitious task of providing new toys for an estimated 200 SAD 44 area needy children.

"So far we've raised $600," said David Murphy, who chairs the project. "Our goal this year is to raise $7,000. At this point, we've had more requests than last year. The need seem to get more urgent every year."

Murphy said that when the project started five years ago, Rotarians shopped for toys for about 30 children. Last year, the club gave out toys and gift certificates for toys to approximately 175 children.

"There are so many people in need," Murphy said. "As our number of needy families have gone up so has our fundraising—but not in the same percentage. It's going to be another tough year."

The Rotary is asking many organizations in the area for support and is collecting money from individuals from now until Dec. 15.

Crescent Park School fifth-graders are also asking fellow students to put spare change in a large jar in the school's hallway for the project.

Any families needing help must contact Murphy in writing by Dec.

New gap found in G'wood tax records

By WENDY HANSCOM

Greenwood selectmen have discovered yet another gap in the town's property tax records, but former Tax Assessor Herb Dunham says he is willing to work with selectmen to fill in the gap—for a price.

The town's new assessing agent said Monday that the missing information further weakens the town's position if any taxpayers elect to appeal their assessments.

At issue is the town's land schedule, which is used to factor in location into property evaluation. An up-to-date land schedule was not turned in with the rest of the town's tax records, the selectmen said last week.

Dunham told selectmen he did not have a copy of the schedule, but that he could "recreate" one if the town paid him to do so.

He said the land schedule could be reconstructed by looking at back records.

But Selectman Marie Bartlett claimed Monday that the land schedule should have been passed in with Dunham's other records.

Town property taxes are figured in two parts, Bartlett said. One component is how much the building on a lot is worth, the other is where the property is located.

"He had to have (the land schedule) to come up with the taxes in town," Bartlett said. "He says he doesn't have it. That's what's steering us in the direction of a reevaluation. I don't think the town should have to pay him again for work he should have done and passed in."

Dunham turned over his records in July, after he was removed as tax assessor in June.

Dunham said Monday that he also passed in a 1986 land schedule when he handed over the town records.

"I've handed them in the land schedule for 1986 and I've said I'd work with Harry Swan and help him

Bethel planners ask, belatedly, for buffer at Rhealu's

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The owner of Rhealu's China Gem, on Route 2, said Tuesday she has not decided if she will go along with a request from the Bethel Planning Board to place a buffer strip of vegetation along the north side of the new restaurant, in order to screen an adjacent residence from headlights and possibly litter from the restaurant's customers.

Such a buffer is provided for in the town's site plan ordinance, but the possible need for one was overlooked by the planning board when it signed off on the project in July.

The oversight was brought to the board's attention last week by Richard Douglass, who had purchased the adjacent residence (the former Magarete Perry property).

Douglass, who closed on the Perry property after the new Chinese restaurant next door had been approved, told the board that he real-

A Bethel tradition will continue this year on Dec. 20, when the nativity scene of the baby Jesus, complete with live barnyard animals, will once again be reenacted on the town common.

For many years now the nativity has been a Bethel tradition, as local people dressed like the characters in the Bible story gathered at a creche on the common, and singers joined in to celebrate the Christmas season with a narrated performance.

This yuletide season, organizers of the nativity say that all those wishing to participate will find something to do.

Especially needed this year are a local family with a young

Opinions

Give thanks, then give

It's coming on the time of year when the difference between "the two Maines" becomes most painful.

While the more fortunate among us plan winter vacations or try to rationalize a second pair of skis for the bumps, others find themselves once again scrambling to find the money to heat the house for the winter or to put food on the table. Others have given up even trying.

This gap is very much in evidence in the Bethel area, where a veneer of prosperity (much of it supported by out-of-state economic activity) overlies a bedrock of more typical rural Maine poverty.

Sadly, such poverty disproportionately afflicts the very young—those who are most vulnerable to its debilitating long-term effects, and whose own actions are in no way responsible for their situation (any more than the children of the affluent can claim credit for their own good fortune and bright prospects).

A recent national survey concluded that more than 23,000 Maine children occasionally face hunger—some of them no doubt are right here among us.

Fortunately, there are also community groups here that are working to bridge that gap, or to at least minimize the pain it inflicts during the always stressful holiday period.

A number of these groups are listed in the article on page one. There are no doubt many others, as well as unpublicized private efforts.

These are the true spirit of the holidays.

Letters to the editor

NEED MORE PLANNING

To the Editor:

At their Nov. 18 meeting, the Bethel Planning Board discussed the appointment of a Comprehensive Planning Committee within the next few months, to review the present Comprehensive Plan and recommend any changes they feel are needed. The committee would include both Planning Board and non-Planning Board members chosen to represent a good cross section of interests and local experience. Equally importantly, the committee would seek input from all Bethel Citizens and businesses.

This letter is to alert Bethel people to this upcoming activity, and to urge everyone's participation in whatever surveys and public hearings are involved.

Walter Hatch
Bethel

FROM THE

Bethel Town Office

I hope you will all join me in wishing the newly extended families of two town employees the very best for the future. Chief Dale Bellman and his wife have a new baby boy, Scott Sumner and his wife brought home a baby girl. Congratulations to all, and good luck.

The work at Davis Park is about finished. The stoves are not yet installed, but are ordered. The trash cans and sanitary facility will be installed in the spring. The Park was built entirely with Jobs Bond funds, made available by the leveraging of the value of the donated land. No town money has been spent to build the Park. I am proud to have been a part of this project, and hope you are as pleased with the final product as I.

I hope the plans of the Friends of the Androscoggin for a canoe access, and those of the parents group working on a playground, have such good results.

Phase III of the Inflow and Infiltration (I&I) Removal Plan began earlier this month. The sewer, storm drain and water work in Park Street will be completed before construction ends this winter. Some portions of Park Street will be left unpaved until next year, when the entire street will receive three inches of permanent pavement.

Phase II of the I&I Removal Plan is done for the winter. The compromise solution for the westerly side of lower Main (from Dr. Shaw's driveway to Railroad Street) is getting mixed reviews. Next year, the final pavement will be done, four trees will be planted, and the Department of Transportation (MDOT) will redesign the intersection (including the island). To reduce the hazard of the current intersection, MDOT is supposed to put up signs for the winter.

There are several organizations offering Christmas help to those in need. If you could use a hand but do not know where to turn, please call me at the Town Office for referrals. With all the good spirited people in this area, there is no reason for anyone to go wanting.

Finally, I would like to take this opportunity to wish the citizens of Bethel a safe and happy holiday season.

Madeleine E. Henley
Town Manager

TIME FOR OTHERS--
Numerous Bethel area community groups are now collecting food, clothing, presents and money to help ensure that our less fortunate neighbors are able to enjoy the holiday season. Gould Academy's Reachout organization, above, sponsored a food collection competition which brought in 475 pounds of non-perishable food items. Winners in the competition received cakes as prizes. The food was brought to Forestdale Elementary School in South Woodstock, where pupils made up Thanksgiving boxes for distribution in Oxford County. The Gould students here are, from left, Darby Hickey of Woodstock, Jessica Trundy of Rumford, Nedda Campbell of Bridgton, and Abigail Wiggins of Stratham, N.H. While, right, Elsie Bonney of Bethel helps local Boy Scout Troop #565 collect food for distribution through the Bethel District Exchange.

Top five hit list

By MIKE BROWN

It will take more than one election to change the political process in Maine. In the year when the public battle cry was "Throw the bums out," over 90 percent of incumbents were re-elected.

The 115th Legislatures filed over 2,000 bills. Undoubtedly, the 116th Legislature will see as many if not more bills drafted for consideration. Each one of these bills will have opponents and proponents, assignment to a working committee, a most probable public hearing and a run through both Houses for debate.

The nature of the legislative beast requires time, time and more time.

However, there is a Top Five that emerges pre-convening in January.

They are: 1. Redistricting; 2. Worker's comp; 3. State budget; 4. State workers' salary; 5. Gay rights.

Redistricting—This is constitutionally mandatory, both federal and state, following the decennial census. And there is a strict timetable. A commission must be established three days after convening of Legislature and it must report a bill to the Legislature within 90 days. Both Houses then have 30 days to pass a redistricting bill—each by a two-thirds vote.

Redistricting was very political, although the commission is evenly structured as to political partisans. But Senate and House district lines will be moved both by political gerrymandering and by necessity of population shifts from the northern rural to the southern urban.

Workers' Comp—The hellfire passage of the worker's comp "reform" bill will re-ignite in the new legislature because nothing was really accomplished with reform despite the structured rhetoric and $100,000 of salaries and expenses into the pockets of legislators who were called to Augusta for nothing by the Governor.

The Budget—The McKernan Administration has finally learned its lesson and stopped planting no-growth Rosy Revenue Bulbs in the State House Garden. Finance Commissioner Sawin Millett threw a $1 billion deficit at the public a month ago. That billy bulb did take public root and seems to be growing every day. The billion is a wish list—that is, giving every department and bureaucrat a Christmas stocking full of goodies. It won't happen.

State Worker's Contract—Just the usual all-session, special interest donnybrook.

Gay Rights—President Bill Clinton's dilemma with gays and lesbians in the military will spotlight the issue for months if not longer. This gives the gay rights movement throughout the nation a continuing platform to launch legislation in state legislatures.

The last seven Maine Legislatures have been confronted with varying degrees of gay rights bills. None have passed. However, the 115th Legislature came very close with the debate on LD 430, "An Act to Prevent Discrimination."

The bill was introduced by Sens. Gerald P. Conley (D-Portland), Barbara Gill (R-South Portland), and Reps. Patricia Stevens (D-Bangor) and William O'Garra (D-Westbrook).

The bill came out of committee with the one-vote margin of "ought to pass." However, there were several amendments, some passing, some defeated in both Houses. The bill finally died in the valley of death between the two legislative branches.

Gay rights legislation is an emotional issue for legislators. It is also almost totally a partisan issue. The Republicans vote against it; the Democrats for it. There are few cross-overs.

A bill, or bills, on gay rights will most assuredly come before legislators early in the session. Debate in the 35-member Senate will be interesting. The original bill in the 115th Senate passed by one vote. But Senate President Charlie Pease consistently voted against gay rights bills.

However, the 116th Senate will have new leadership. Senate President-nominee Dennis "Duke" DuRumelle, Majority Leader Don Esty and Assistant Majority Leader Beverly Bustin all voted in favor of gay rights legislation.

However, Gov. McKernan had threatened a veto and unless he changes his stand, legislative passage would confront a veto which would need a two-thirds vote to overturn. That would not be a probability.

update a land schedule," Dunham said.

But the town's new assessing agent said Monday that if Dunham claims he can recreate the land schedule from the town's "incomplete, out-of-date and undocumented" tax records then it has to already exist somewhere.

"It is conceivable that an assessor could carry the numbers in his head and apply them to individual assessments as they go," said John O'Donnell of O'Donnell Associates in Auburn. "Any professional would have a problem with that system. There weren't any numbers (in Greenwood's records) that seem to represent an element of a schedule. If they were carried in his head, then we're stuck with what we have."

O'Donnell said he still favors the town undergoing a complete reevaluation to bring its records up to date. "As people pursue any appeals, we'll be asked to represent the town," he said. "And in order to do that we have to feel that the town is taking some steps to improve the assessment system. This is not an effort on our part to get more work. We're trying to advise Greenwood what's in the best interest of the taxpayers. I don't see how any professional could take what exists in Greenwood now and represent it as

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, Dec. 3 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 6:30 p.m. with the annual "Christmas with the Masons."

Featured during this hour will be Christmas music and old-time refreshments. Mull cider will be served from the winter kitchen fireplace and the museum will be decorated as it might have been during the early 19th century.

At 7:30 the regular business meeting will be held, followed by a program of slides made during the past year. A special presentation to the Society from the American Association of State and Local History will also be made. Anyone interested in attending is cordially invited to do so.

A dinner honoring guides in the museum and volunteers who assist with the garden and grounds, was held on Nov. 19 hosted by members of the Society's Museum Committee. Museum Committee chair Judy Haskell expressed the Society's gratitude for all who helped this year to make the 1992 summer program such a success. She was seconded in her remarks by society director Stanley R. Howe.

Following the traditional boiled dinner, Society Curator of Collections Randall Bennett presented a slide show on the White Mountains to complete the evening.

Over 75 percent of the 1992 Endowment Campaign goal has been reached to date. Among the most recent donors are Royden and Alice Keddy, Gorham; Ernest and Alberta Angevine, Bethel, in memory of Rena Abbott; Margaret M. Sawyer, Waterford, in memory of Bill Sawyer; Vernon Ingraham, Marion, Mass., in memory of Eli Leland Mason; Norman and Jean Ness, Orono; Ruth Dobson, Hopkinton, N.H., in memory of Winfield Stanley White; Irene Sessions and Ethel Chapman, Bethel, in memory of Stella Bryant Smith; Nicholas Noyes, Mechanic Falls, in memory of John E. Thief clips cable curl at new brewery Heine Merrill of the Sunday River Brewing Co. reported Friday the theft of about 150 feet of electrical cable. Part of the cable was buried around the restaurant with its end curled up in a trench. The thief cut the rolled wire above the ground. Merrill estimated the loss at about $35, but said it could cost up to $5,000 to dig up the cable already buried underground and relay it. The wiring was run for external lights, Merrill said.

Police made two arrests last week. Thomas O. Doane, no age or address given, was arrested Thursday evening near the intersection of Route 2 and the Sunday River Road for operating without a license and OUI. He was transported to the Oxford County Jail in South Paris.

On Saturday, Randy L. Coulombe, 22, of Bethel was arrested for operating after license suspension. He was also taken to the Oxford County Jail.

In other police news last week, police controlled traffic from 3 to 4:30 a.m. at a fire at P.H. Chaddbourne & Co.

Police were called to Bethel Park Apartments earlier Thursday night on a noise complaint. The offenders were asked to quiet down, which police reported they did.

Friday evening a clerk at the Red Top Truck Stop reported the theft of 10 gallons of gas.

Police controlled traffic at a chimney fire Saturday afternoon in the Naimey Block.

Later Saturday afternoon, Bethel IGA employee Rod Royer turned over a bicycle found in the store's parking lot. Royer told police another IGA employee reported seeing a boy drop the Raleigh mountain bike in the parking lot and run off.

Donations may also be sent to the above address. Anyone interested in more information can contact Murphy at 824-2839 or 824-2041. The Bethel Rotary also distributes food baskets to needy families and will sponsor the annual free senior citizens luncheon at the Bethel American Legion Hall on Dec. 15 at noon.

Christmas for Families
Nina Wheeler of West Bethel is collecting for Christmas for Families again this year.

Wheeler originally ran the local Christmas Caravan program, formerly sponsored by the Portland Press Herald. When the company dropped the program, Wheeler continued with the renamed Christmas for Families.

The program provides needy families with new toys, hats, mittens, warm clothing and presents for adults.

Last year the program helped 57 SAD 44 families, Wheeler said. The program could use money, new winter clothing and accessories, puzzles, games such as cribbage boards, Monopoly and Parchessi, toys and more.

Wheeler said she is especially in need of gifts for teenagers. Her suggestions included watches, portable radios, wallets and belts.

The Passamaquoddy Indians are sponsoring a benefit bingo for Christmas for Families on Dec. 9 at 6 p.m. at the Locke Mills Legion Hall. Proceeds from the game will go to the project.

Wheeler also said if anyone is interested in donating a food basket she will distribute it to a needy family.

Anyone interested in contributing to Christmas for Families can contact Wheeler at 836-3600. Those in need may also contact her at the same number. All requests are confidential.

Santa's Helpers
Some SAD 44 children will also get gifts for Santa's Helpers in Rumford.

Dot Sanchas said the program provides gifts for children up to age 12 including: warm clothing, toys, mittens, socks, underwear and toys.

Individuals can sponsor a child or family and buy gifts or make financial donations.

"We also take donated items, but everything for Christmas is new," Sanchas said. "We're passing out second-hand items right now."

Donations can be dropped off at the Santa's Helpers office at 28 Congress Street in Rumford (the former Key Bank in the Muskie Building). Applications for assistance are also available at that office. Sanchas can provide more information about the program at 369-0405.

Other efforts

The Andover Service Club will be distributing food baskets to needy Andover families.

The Andover Elementary School is donating canned goods to the effort through Dec. 15. The baskets will be ready by Dec. 17.

Club President Judy Michaud said she would like to have anyone who needs assistance contact her at 392-1221. "Identifying need is a real problem," she said. "Town general assistance records are confidential and so are those who receive free school lunches. We'd be happy to hear from Andover residents."

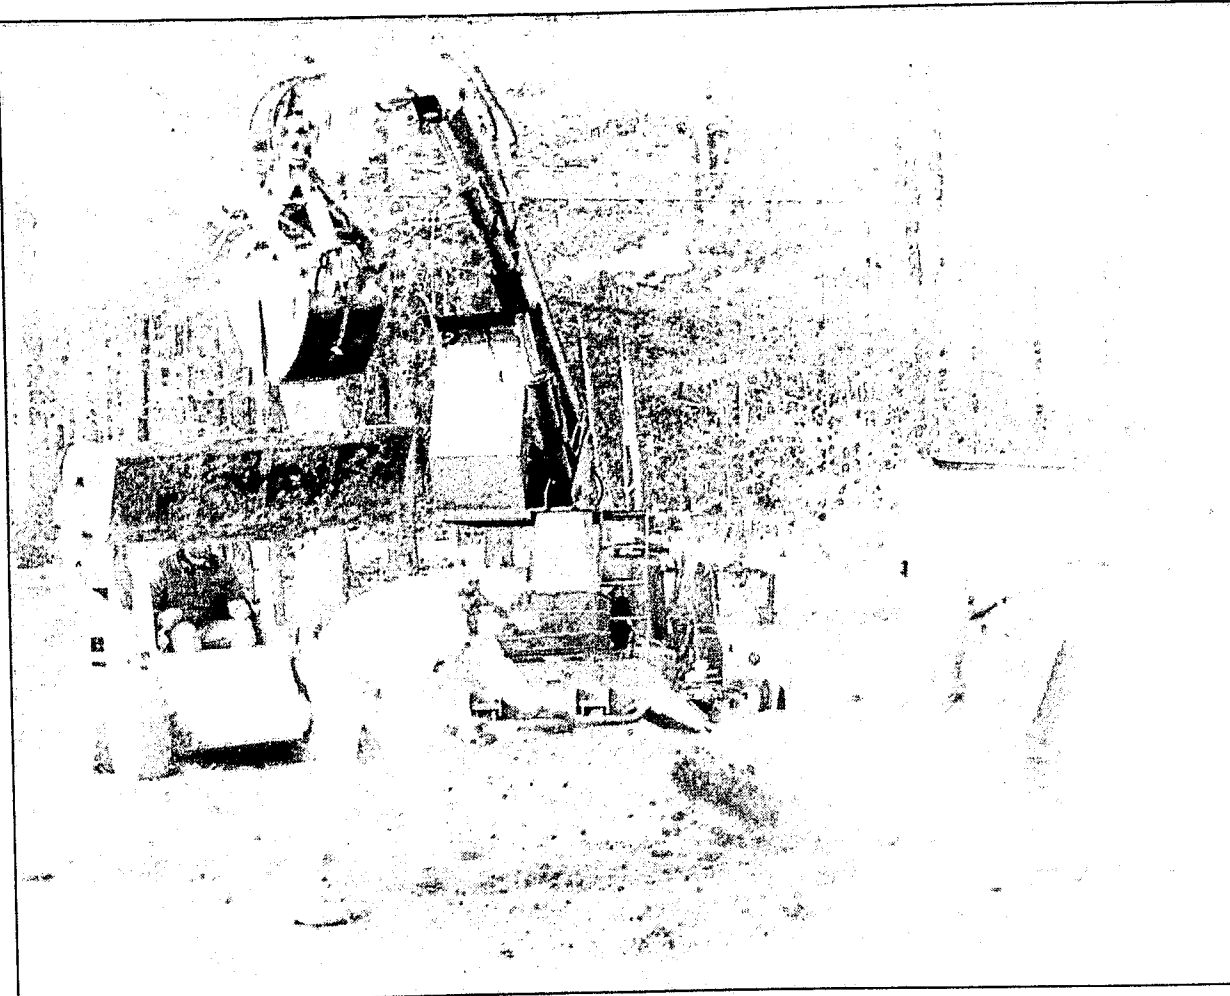

Anyone wishing to donate to the project can send a check to: The Andover Service Club, HCR 63, Box 16, East Andover, Maine, 04226.

The Woodstock Elementary School is collecting winter clothing, footwear, coats for infants, toddlers and children and non-perishable food items for Kids Count for Christmas.

WES students are also donating canned food to the Boy Scouts' Scouting for Food project.

Local Salvation Army secretary Maryvonne Wheeler will be picking up jackets and snowsuits from Coats For Kids in Portland soon. Those in need can call Wheeler with sizes at 836-3700.

(The Citizen contacted a number of local groups for this article. If anyone was left out, please submit a press release or give us a call at 824-2444.)

Telstar Guidance Dept. lauded

By WENDY HANSCOM

SAD 44's Monday night school board meeting was largely devoted to a presentation praising the efforts of the high school guidance department.

Students, staff, parents and community members testified about the strengths of the program.

Guidance Director Dan Hart told the board that an educational consultant had told him if his department was doing good things then he should share that fact with the school board—which a 16-member panel did for close to an hour.

Several parents told the board of positive experiences their children have had with the district's guidance department.

Tom Remington of Bethel said his daughter, Bridget, was encouraged by counselors to participate in summer enrichment programs at various colleges.

"These experiences made her realize she could succeed in a school like Stanford University—that she was no different from kids in L.A. or anywhere else," he said. Bridget is currently a freshman at Stanford.

Teacher Pauline Applin said the guidance department also serves as communication center.

"When I have a problem, an idea or question," she said. "They can plug me into the right resource."

In other business, Superintendent Dewaine Craig presented the board with a preliminary budget timetable. Full-board budget review workshops, which are open to the public, are scheduled to be held in Woodstock, Bethel and Andover this spring.

The first budget workshop has been tentatively scheduled for Feb. 23 in Andover.

The board also made several personnel appointments.

Debra Olmstead was approved as a substitute teacher.

Extra-curricular personnel appointed include: James Lunney, Telstar Middle School student council adviser and seventh-grade team leader; Elaine Hutchins and Mildred Chapman, TMS drama advisers; Kristan Connor, TMS yearbook adviser; Thomas Riley, TMS eighth-grade team leader; William Caddigan, Linda Davis, Wayne Howe and Debra Piccirilli, TMS sixth-grade team leaders; Judith Brown, TMS special ed. leader and Raymond Seames, high school girls assistant basketball coach.

The board accepted the resignation of Diane Henson as bus driver and Walter Springer as high school assistant girls basketball coach.

Philip Korhonen was approved as a bus driver.

Safe winter driving tips

Last week's snowfall caught many motorists by surprise and resulted in a rash of accidents and the tragic loss of five lives.

"Sensible winter driving habits can help motorists avoid crashes and traffic tie-ups during the months ahead," said Richard E. Perkins, director of the Bureau of Highway Safety.

Perkins stressed the life-saving value of safety belts—citing that none of last week's victims were buckled up. "Safety belts help you stay in a position where you might maintain control of your vehicle if you should suddenly lose traction," he said.

Although winter weather sometimes surprises us, it doesn't have to catch us unprepared. Perkins made the following suggestions for safer travel:

1. Prepare your auto for winter now. Have an engine tune-up and inspection of the electrical system to insure dependable starting, and don't forget the items that directly effect traction and visibility, including tires, brakes, the lighting system, and windshield wipers.

2. Replenish your trunk supplies. Most overlooked in winter safety preparation, a properly equipped trunk is one part of the vehicle that can play an essential role in emergency situations. Make sure it contains sand or rock salt, a shovel, battery booster cables, fire chains, a tow chain/strap, emergency flares/reflectors, and auxiliary lighting equipment with fresh batteries.

3. Expect slippery roads. Roads need not be snow-covered to be slippery. Whenever it is precipitating and the temperature is near or below freezing, expect icy patches. Reduce your speed and increase the distance between you and the vehicle in front of you. Remember, bridges freeze before roadways.

Planners

ized it was too late to file a formal appeal of the approval, but he thought the board might suggest some action to correct the situation.

John Laban, a consultant hired by Douglass, also questioned why the planners had ignored need for a buffer strip.

Laban said later he was satisfied with the board's response—"They admitted they made a mistake," he said.

The board also agreed to have chairman Frank Vogt write to Gibbs to attempt to find a compromise solution.

Vogt's letter was mailed Monday. On Tuesday Gibbs said she had received the letter but had not had time to decide about putting up the buffer.

She also said prior to receiving the letter from the planning board she had not been contacted by Douglass about the matter.

"This all happened so fast that I just haven't had a chance to think it through," she said. "I believe in compromise and trying to work with people, but right now I'm just trying to get the restaurant open."

Open this weekend?

Gibbs said she hoped to have Rhaul's open by the weekend. She said there would be signs in front of the restaurant this weekend to let potential customers know one way or the other.

From Augusta--

Rep. Alvin Barth

The New Session

One of the first orders of business after the election is for each party to caucus and elect their leadership people for the 116th Maine Legislature. House Republicans held their caucus on Nov. 18.

Meeting in Augusta were 61 Republicans, representing an increase of seven seats over the number held in the 115th Legislature. Of even greater significance is the fact that 26 of the Representatives are new this year. They represent a wide diversity of backgrounds and experiences and include several "former" legislators who returned to Augusta after some time off from politics.

Walter E. Whitcomb, a dairy farmer from Waldo, was unanimously re-elected minority leader. Four representatives ran for the assistant minority leader and after five ballots Steve Zirkilton from Seal Harbor was elected. Although newly-elected, Zirkilton is no newcomer, having served three terms 1982-1988. His voice may be best known to many as he narrates the popular TV show "Law and Order."

Both leaders stressed the need for cooperation between parties. "Clearly, the people have expressed their wishes in the election. They want us to put aside our differences and cooperate to find solutions to problems. That is what we will be doing as a first step, but if the process does break down, we will not hesitate to let people know that we were the party that tried to reach compromise," said Zirkilton.

The Republican Caucus will continue to stress legislation that is in the best interests of the people of Maine, i.e. making State Government live within its means, prioritizing State programs and eliminating those of low priority, revamping programs that don't work, and resisting unproductive tax increases.

Leadership people from both parties and from both House and Senate form the Leadership Council which acts as an executive committee for the Legislature. Senate Democrats and Republicans have also selected their leadership and House Democrats will meet on Nov.

21 to make their selections. Two positions, speaker of the house and Senate president are voted on by the entire House or Senate. If the past is any example, the majority party controls who these two people will be. Whether or not a House Democrat challenges the present speaker, John Martin, remains to be seen. Most Republicans would welcome the change.

The next order of business is a Pre-Legislative Conference, Nov. 30 to Dec. 3. The 116th Legislature will be sworn in on Dec. 2. Committee assignments will be made after that date. In the 115th Legislature I served on the Joint Standing Committee on Education and have asked to again serve on that committee. All committee assignments and committee chairs are made by the speaker so anything can happen.

The 116th Legislature will begin its first regular session during the first week in January 1993. Once again the major issue or driving force in all legislation will be the inability of tax revenues to keep pace with projected expenses. After hearing all the campaign rhetoric and talking with legislators from both parties, I am confident that we will be able to work together to resolve this problem.

One other major item of business that faces the 116th is re-districting. Every 10 years legislative districts are re-drawn because of changes in population as shown by the latest census. A 15-member, bipartisan commission will propose new boundaries and report to the Legislature some time in April. There are federal and constitutional guidelines to follow as well as Maine guidelines as set down by the commission. My hope is that one of these "local" guidelines will be districts based on school administrative units.

Because of the many tough decisions that will have to be made in August I expect that my phone will ring often. Please do not hesitate to call or write if you have a concern. While the Legislature is in session, January 3 to June 19, you can call me in Augusta 1-800-423-2900. Other times call 824-2931. I welcome your suggestions and value your advice.

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Happy Thanksgiving from all of us at West Paris. All classes have been involved with Thanksgiving activities: learning about the Pilgrims, making turkey decorations, and learning lots of history and new vocabulary. Comucopia!

Also, Nov. 19 was the Great American Smokeout and all classes focused on anti-smoking activities during the day.

One upcoming date to mark on your calendar is Tuesday, Dec. 15. That is the date set for the annual Christmas concert. All grades, K through 6 will participate in the program, which will begin at 7 p.m. Friends and family are encouraged to attend.

We are welcoming three new students this week: Kristi Kennedy, grade five; Karen LePage, grade three; and Albert McPhail, grade two.

The focus this week is on my fifth-grade class. We have finished our reading unit of suspense stories and are getting quite accurate in identifying the rising action, climax, and falling actions in these stories. The first book report of the new ranking period will be reflecting those three elements of an author's craft. Our next writing assignment, with the theme of danger, will include those same elements.

At this writing we are finishing up our letters to people in the service who don't get home for Christmas. This is a way for us to think of others, and the replies we receive give a lot back to us.

We have finished up our health unit on the body systems, and will be beginning our science unit, mystery powders. Small groups will work together to identify a variety of properties which will eventually lead to identifying the powders. Should be fun.

In social studies we are working with atlases in addition to our textbook study of the history of our country.

We have been working with decimals, fractions and problem solving in math. Parent volunteers, Mrs. Inman and Mrs. Wilcox, have been coming in on a regular basis and both the students and myself appreciate their help.

We are continuing with our journal writing and our poetry recitations. We are learning an impressive variety of poems, becoming familiar with a variety of poets, and having fun doing it.

NOTES FROM

Adult Education

Customer Service for Front-Liners, a three-hour workshop for area employees, co-sponsored by Adult Education of the Telstar Region and the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 1, with a choice of morning (9 a.m. to noon) or afternoon (1 to 4 p.m.) sessions. The seminar presenter will be Patricia Williams, a consultant to businesses and other groups on issues related to quality, productivity and organizational effectiveness.

In the midst of increasing competition and economic recession, customer service can mean the difference between an organization that barely survives and one that thrives. "As the Western Mountains area launches into the busy winter season, employers and employees have a unique opportunity to sharpen their customer relations skills through attendance at a workshop of high quality offered close to home," said Catherine Newell, director of adult education.

This workshop will cover how to project a positive image of a company and keep satisfied customers returning again and again. Topics to be included are: critical components of customer service, the difference between good service and exceptional service, how front-line people make or break an organization, and how to handle difficult customers and situations.

The workshops will be held at the West Parish Congregational Church, Church Street, in the newly refurbished meeting room on the lower level. The registration fee, covering all instruction, materials and refreshment breaks is $15 for the first employee from a business with a discount for additional employees at $12 per person. To register, call the adult education office, 824-2780. All registrations must be pre-paid. Please indicate preference for morning or afternoon session.

Women Unlimited, a training program for women interested in entering non-traditional employment fields, has completed a four-week residency at the Adult Learning Center in Bethel. The 13 women began their course in September at Oxford Hills Adult Education and are currently completing the program at NOVA Adult Education in Rumford, before celebrating with graduation exercises set for Dec. 17 in Bethel.

In addition to a rigorous program of academic brush-up, physical fitness, career exploration, and personal goal-setting, the participants are given training in three career fields. In South Paris, the field was truck-driving, in Bethel, an introduction to surveying, and in Rumford, an introduction to broadcast technology.

The program is funded cooperatively by the local adult education program through Carl D. Perkins Vocational Grants, the Maine Department of Transportation, and Mountain Valley Training, the local deliverer of Department of Labor JTPA funds.

In Bethel, fitness classes were held with the cooperation of the Bethel Area Health Center and Gould Academy. Lee Dolleman served as the math instructor at the Learning Center, and Gary Inman conducted the introduction to surveying using the parking lot and grounds of the Ethel Bisbee School. Cindy Walker of the SAD 44 Buildings and Grounds Department served on a panel on non-traditional employment and also conducted a safety briefing on chain saw use.

University of Maine Placement Testing—The University of Maine at Augusta's Placement Tests will be given at the Adult Learning Center at Ethel Bisbee School on Monday, Nov. 30 at 10 a.m. These tests are required for students enrolling in math and English courses over the ITV system or at the Rumford/Mexico Center. Those interested in the testing session in Bethel are asked to call the Adult Education office, 824-2780. There is no charge for the testing.

Central Maine Technical College Testing—The SAD 44 Adult and Community Education program is now approved to administer the placement tests for CMTC under a new cooperative agreement between the college and local adult education providers. Phil Perrault of the college staff met recently with adult educators from SAD 44 and NOVA to orient them to the tests and materials to be used in CMTC developmental studies courses in reading, writing and math offered at local adult education programs. Attending the session were Cathy Newell, Merrill Bitner and Nancy Merrow of SAD 44 and Cynthia Tanous of NOVA. Anyone interested in taking the CMTC tests is asked to call the Adult Education office, 824-2780.

Winter courses—Suggestions are welcome for courses to be offered during the winter and spring terms. Director Cathy Newell anticipates that the winter term will again focus on short courses and single-session programs running from mid-January to late February. Spring courses will begin in March. The academic courses, such as writing, reading, GED preparation, math and algebra are open-entry, with students entering at any time during the year.

Adult Education 2000 Advisory Committee meets—The Adult Education 2000 committee met on Nov. 17 to review plans for improvements at the Adult Learning Center funded by a major grant from the Betterment Fund, and to discuss the results of a community survey which has been conducted since June. The Committee members present were Dick Crandall, Peter Kuzyk and Beverly Cassara of Bethel, John Foster of Andover, Dillon Gillies of Greenwood, Lois Ruff of Bryant Pond and Greg Fraser of Newry. Gillies, who is employed at Sunday River, and Kuzyk, a local contractor, are both recent additions to the group. Karen Gould has since agreed to join the committee. She is a recent graduate of Bates College and a graduate of Telstar High School, now employed in the area.

The next meeting of Adult Education 2000 will be held on Jan. 19, 1993 at 7 p.m. at the Adult Learning Center.

By RUSSELL YATES

Well folks, many of you have asked for it and I've decided to do more writing for the Citizen. I don't hear much news from the neighbors, but I can at least let you know what sister Peggy and myself are doing.

The garden season has ended so now I'll have more time for other things. With sister Peggy's help, we got a lot of produce from our garden to freeze and can, but it didn't do as well as last year. Maybe that's why I only had one Woodchuck show up here this summer. They didn't think it worthwhile. The one that did come was spotted by me as I sat at the table eating breakfast and before the afternoon was gone, I had caught him. His feast from my garden was a short one.

It has been a real busy season for Peggy. She continues to do the card work at Laverdiere's in South Paris and in Bridgton twice each week as well as keeping up with all her other activities. Since I fell on the ice last February, breaking my left arm, I haven't been as well as before and was poorly all this summer but I do feel some better this fall.

Peggy and I are quite well occupied with Grange and were chosen as delegates to the State Grange session in Augusta, representing both Franklin Grange in Bryant Pond and Oxford Pomona Grange 2. We attended the banquet on the evening of Oct. 28 along with all of the other delegates and officials.

Viva is still at her daughter's in Auburn and is quite well after all she has had to go through. She still goes to the Maine Medical Center in Portland about once each month for more chemo therapy. She goes into the hospital on a Friday and returns home the following Tuesday. She is usually very tired after each treatment. At home, she is up and dressed each day and is fortunate to have a very nice lady come to stay with her for the day five days a week. This lady is hired by Kimberly Care and is a moral booster for Viva. Viva's address is: c/o Michael Woolf, 2047 Hotel Road, Auburn, 04210. Viva enjoys receiving cards and enjoys visitors. To find her, when traveling on Minot Avenue headed toward Auburn, turn right onto Hotel Road near Ouellette's grocery store, which is on the left side of Minot Avenue. At the intersection bear right again and continue on nearly to the first bridge. They live in the second house from the bridge on the right. We try to get down to visit Viva once each week.

Monday, Nov. 9, Peggy went to do her card work as usual, but I had to take my old Volkswagen Pickup to Ken's Auto Service to have some work done on the exhaust system. The old truck was a bit too noisy. The next day, Peggy baked a three layer carrot cake to be used for a birthday cake for her daughter Loretta. In the afternoon, we went to Auburn to visit Viva and found her doing quite well. She will be going to the Maine Medical for more chemo therapy on Nov. 13. We got back home and Peggy frosted the birthday cake after supper. It was very pretty. Wednesday, Nov. 11 was spent getting the place all cleaned up and preparing for a birthday supper for Loretta. Peggy baked some chicken and I helped getting some of the vegetables ready to cook. She got a real nice supper prepared and then our guests arrived consisting of Loretta and Emerson Merrill, son James Merrill and wife Mary all from West Bethel and Samantha and Tom Murch from Waterford. Peggy made hot biscuits and what a supper. All hands ate heartily and we're still eating some of the leftovers. I think our guests all enjoyed the supper and evening.

Friday morning the 13th, we woke up to a cloudy sky after a night with lots of rain, but it soon began to clear to a beautiful sunny day with the temperature getting up into the low 50's. Peggy had a long day doing her card work at Laverdiere's, and didn't get back home until late in the afternoon. I was outside quite a lot that day as 50 degree weather was unusual. I planted five hills of angel trumpet out front. I was given the seed by Dr. Waite in Norway. I've never had any of it before so it will be something new for me next year, if the seed sprouts and grows. I was told that it must be planted in the fall as the seed need to freeze. In the early evening, we went to Mechanic Falls and joined Lewis and Myrtle Bisbee for a trip to Pine Tree Grange 3 in Lisbon. They had an attendance of 80 people and nearly all of them were there for the ham supper that they served. The supper was delicious and we also enjoyed a real nice meeting. Saturday was mostly sunny but not as warm as Friday. Saturday night, Peggy picked up Audrey Hadley in West Paris and they went to the dance at Locke Mills. I didn't quite feel up to going. I haven't been to a dance since before I broke my arm falling on the ice last February. I'm planning to try it again soon. I used to enjoy it but just haven't felt up to it this summer. When I go to a dance, I want to dance and not sit on the side listening to the music.

Sunday the 15th, we met Laura in Bethel and all went to Ashland, N.H. to visit Joan and Verne King. Joan was the daughter of Laura's first husband and Laura has always kept in touch and visited her. Laura had cooked an old fashioned boiled dinner and had taken it along for us to dine on. It was nearly noontime when we got there and the table was all set for dinner as Joan knew that Laura was planning to bring the dinner with her. We all enjoyed the dinner. Laura had found some corned beef round that she had cooked for meat and the whole dinner was delicious. We enjoyed our visit and also the trip up and back. Colored foliage is beautiful, but it is still nice with the foliage gone. Sometimes you will see things that you didn't know existed, when the foliage was on.

Yesterday was fair weather but cold. Peggy was doing card work again, but I was busy here part of the day. I did a load of washing in the morning then I made a batch of apple brownies to take for dessert at grange. Last evening, we went to grange at Bryant Pond and took the apple brownies for part of the lunch after the meeting. The attendance was small at the meeting but we had a good meeting and a good time.

After being out late last night, I'm sleepy so guess I'll call it enough for this time, but if all goes well, I'll probably be back next week with more of the happenings here at Yatesville.

At this time of year I like to watch the bird feeders closely because the birds begin to change. One day I noticed a new animal right under the messiest sunflower seeds. At first there was one then another appeared. They were nibbling at the fallen sunflower seeds. They were too short-eared to be deer mice and too red to be meadow voles. It was interesting to watch them for every time a bird flew over they would dart under leaves or somewhere from sight. Then they would creep out again to nibble more seeds. Their shiny black eyes noticed every movement around them. When a chickadee landed near, I guessed the reason. They were so small that they made even a chickadee look big. They knew that they must be a favorite morsel for hungry predators.

I hurried to get out my books and papers to find what they were. I found them to be red-backed voles. These furry mammals put on their reddest fur for winter and then become more subdued for spring and summer. They are very active both night and day and the color change may have something to do with survival. I had a very good look at them and won't soon forget those shiny eyes and the rich, soft fur, as it glistened in the sun.

I read that basically they live in the woods but wander in the winter to find food. Like the mice, they are seed eaters and seed stores. Although I have watched since, I have not seen them return. Maybe competing with chickadees made them too nervous and they decided it wasn't worth it.

Esther Davis has arrived home from their visit to her daughters in Florida for the month of October. I missed her while she was gone. She has been keeping me company for two afternoons this week and it is such a help. Sunday afternoon she took me with her to visit relatives in Livermore area. We went to Jay and visited Clyde and Martha Hines. Then to Livermore where we stopped at the Pomeroy Hill Nursing Home and visited her brother, Don Brown who is a patient there. Her sister, Marion and husband James Whittemore were there visiting their son, Jimmy who is a patient. So we visited with them. Then we left for So. Livermore and called on another sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pike. We had supper with them before returning home at 6 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews took dinner with Olive Davis on Tuesday. They were in No. Boro, Mass. celebrating Paul Winkle's birthday with a large group of people over the weekend.

The retired teachers met at the West Paris Finnish American Center on Nov. 21. The program was on Finnish American culture. A silent auction was held to earn money for the group.

Snow fell on our fields Sunday night. It was slow in melting Monday morning. More snow was promised for last week.

At the November meeting of the Historical Society a program was presented on Eskimos just in time for winter. Items for the Thanksgiving basket were also donated. -Larry Billings, curator.

The December meeting of the Historical Society will be a potluck supper and a Christmas party. Curator, Larry Billings has read a book on the Hapsburgs and History of France.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Miro and two children are spending a week with Jane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hathaway. They took Thanksgiving dinner before returning home.

Hunting has been fast and furious in Maine. More people have been shot than deer. Why hunt? It isn't safe to be outside the house now.

Esther Davis made some calls on Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Tyler and Myrtle Thurlow who are in the Ledgeview Nursing Home. Esther is so kind to all and a good cheery lady to have around. She is always helping someone.

The Historical Society open house was well attended last week. People seemed to enjoy visiting and seeing the exhibits. Thanks to Annella Burnham for arranging refreshments. Larry Billings, Curator.

Edith Deegan called on Esther Davis Thursday and helped with her double windows. Thanks, Edith.

Esther Davis took Vera Buck and Olive Davis to Norway shopping Nov. 13. They had dinner on the Thanksgiving line with her before going home.

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

Thaxter Littlefield went to the Ledgeview Memorial Home in West Paris on Thursday last week. I believe he will be there for the winter and would probably like to hear from his friends from town.

Jan and Frank Gross of Massachusetts were overnight guests of Walter and Carolyn Heino this past weekend.

Eben and Alice Harmon, Anne Wyman and I met with Cindy Fox on Monday night to discuss and put together an activity calendar for the Stoneham Knight Riders. Anyone with any suggestions please contact any of the committee before the next meeting. It sounds like a fun winter and volunteers are needed to help put these events on.

Gladys Kilgore has had new steel roofing put onto her barn. Estes and Sons did the work. It's good to see these older homes kept in repair.

Ed Barker got a bonus this past week. I heard that he got a 175 pound bear. Guess I won't go in the woods until they hibernate.

The Avon person was through town this week with their products and was delighted to get a new customer, which is always welcome.

On Tuesday night the church meeting at Fran Hamilton's was canceled on account of slippery driving.

The Stoneham Rescue is again accepting donations from people who wish to "purchase" a light for their outdoor Christmas tree in memory or in honor of a loved one. You may send a $5 contribution to Stoneham Rescue Service to Tree of Light c/o Teena Barker, P.O. Box 21, Waterford, Me. 04088.

The Cub Scouts were around last Saturday delivering the food bags for scouting. These were to be left on the doorknob for people to donate food for the hungry in the area and they will be picked up next Saturday, Nov. 21 by the Scouts to be taken to a central place and then to be distributed to the needy. Some people are out of jobs and those who have children to feed just need a little help, especially at this time of year.

Matthew Nelson was here one day last week delivering his Boy Scout popcorn which helps his organization. Also he was delivering his Christmas cards which he had been selling on his own. He's quite the little businessman.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday, Nov. 16 for a regular meeting and Thanksgiving program. Twenty-two people were present. It was voted to host Pomona Grange in April and October. Voted to bring some food for a food pantry at the December meeting instead of exchange of gifts. Sick members were reported on and cards sent. Program as follows the last ceremony of the 125th anniversary of the Grange was read by Richard Felt, Joyce Hoyt and Peggy Blake, opening thought-Anna Swan, reading on Thanksgiving-Olive Risko, Harry Boyer sang two songs, the Grange band played and Bertha Benoit sang.

Dot Canwell whistled, Johnny Howe presented his fathers' Grange tie pin to Richard Felt, the Thanksgiving basket went to David and Lynne Benoit. A Silent Auction was held and the money to go to Amy Howe who will represent Telstar High School on a trip to London near the end of December, in track, only two Maine young people are going. Next meeting is Dec. 21. Only one meeting a month will be held during the winter months.

Curator Larry Billings, of the Historical Society points out that tins are very collectible. Rare advertising is now highly valued. Popular brands of tins and even some reproductions are still reasonably priced, however. Tin signs are also valuable. The Historical Society is a center for learning about all kinds of things people collect. You can see good examples of antiques and collectibles there and then go out and get some of your own. At the Nov. meeting of the Society members discussed the recent Open House and special exhibits at Gould Academy that Olive Risko arranged. Treasurer Paul Billings presented a detailed account of revenues as much business has been conducted recently. Ruby Emery wrote a report for the research committee on U.S. presidents. Evelyn Bean donated a calling card relating to both Mrs. Hayes and Rev. Kinsman. Much thanks is extended to all Society members who have worked so hard lately. The program arranged by Robert Billings was very interesting. It was on Eskimos. He presented the slides and talked about them. The December meeting will be a Christmas party. A potluck supper will be held at 6 p.m. The exchange of gifts and cards will follow the business meeting at 7 p.m.

The Woodstock Extension met on Wednesday at the Town Annex. Lamp shades were made under direction of Mary Billings and Nella Burnham. Cake and ice cream was served for the November birthdays. Fourteen members and one guest attended.

Have a very Happy Thanksgiving. We have so much to be thankful for.

Woodstock Senior Citizens will meet on Thursday, Dec. 3 at the Woodstock Masonic Hall. Christmas dinner will be served by the Star Birthday Club. Program Christmas Gifts and Cards. Each one bring a gift to exchange.

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Amity,
Last year at this time, I wrote to your cousin Vita in a rather impassioned appeal to her sense of humanity, drawing upon the spirit of the Thanksgiving season to instill in her a challenge to go out and make a contribution to change. It worked! She's transformed for good and the good of others... And recently she wrote to boast of her successes and to suggest that I repeat my story to you so that you can pass it on to the others on the reservation. So here I am, once again upon my soapbox, the designated demagogue, and forthwith you will find the story...

Once upon a time there was a band of pilgrims who dared to set out for a new world and a chance to make a new life. They had suffered religious persecution in their homeland and sought freedom from the powers that ruled them. Their hearts were filled with fear; their skin was white. After tossing over the waves for endless days, they set foot on the foreign soil and gave thanks for their lives.

There were people already established on the new land. They taught the newcomers how to survive and how to thrive. Their hearts were full of giving; their heads were full of misgivings; their skin was red. They shared their secrets with the immigrants, and after a harsh winter and a successful growing season, the two peoples sat down to feast and to give thanks for the bounty.

After a while, the newcomers got greedy. They pushed the red men further and further from their homes. They claimed the land for their own; they believed that the land was for the taking. The red men fought for their territory, but eventually, they were beaten into submission and forced to gather in smaller and smaller spaces.

Meanwhile, the white people thrived on their stolen property, and eventually developed colonies and vast plantations. Those farms required lots of hands, so the owners bought into a new idea: importing help from another continent. Human beings were snatched from their homes, bound in chains, and sold to the white men as slaves. These people were robbed of their rights, conscripted as workers, denied their freedom. Their hearts were full of fear; their heads were full of confusion; their skin was black.

Over the centuries, the settlements grew from colonies to states to one nation. Industries usurped the power of the plantations; the system of slavery was abolished. The new nation welcomed emigrants from many countries and diverse ethnicities, and the melting pot became a haven for the "poor...tired...huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

And everyone lived happily ever after...right?...Wrong!

Somewhere along the pilgrims' progress, we the people lost sight of our history, our compassion, our duty. We bought into the prejudicial notion that while all men are created equal, some are 'more equal' than others. While many of us continue to worship as our forefathers did, and others indulge in different 'isms', we appear to have forgotten the simple assignment of each sect...to love others as we love ourselves.

Where in the story of mankind does it say that some of us are better than others? Where did we get the notion that it's all right to condemn another for his poverty, or his wealth, or the hook of his nose, or the hue of his skin? What happened to the ideals that we learned as children? Where in our march from the playground to the battleground did we lose sight of the reality of the Golden Rule? Who shortened it to... "Do unto others"...? Who says that life's a contest, and someone has to lose in order for me to win? Why can't we both win?

With a little work on our attitudes we can gain the peace that we say we want. We can let go of the fear that directs our actions and reactions, and we can take a new stand for what I call, "Love and Let Live." We get to let go of the anger and resentment that does no good. If in our dealings with others we see them as mirrors of ourselves, we can listen without judging, watch without condemning, act without expecting.

And in the spirit of giving, we get to perform for the right reasons. If we offer time or talent or assistance, we can do it for the sake of making a difference, not an impression. We can share ourselves with others and spend our energy on projects for the greater good, not our own. Instead of undermining we can strive for understanding.

As we prepare for the feast of "Our Fathers," let's give thanks for the power that we all have to really make a difference. That power is generated by our ability to love and it's manifested by our daring to step outside our comfort zone and to take the hand of our neighbor...whether that hand be red or black or white or yellow or brown. And as we hold that hand in friendship, let's forget where it lives or works or worships, and just experience the warmth of the connection to another soul who laughs and cries, feels pain and joy, just as we do.

Let us give thanks for our lives, and our loves as we forgive our debts and our debtors. Let's remember that where there is love, there is no room for hate, and that in loving we can dispel fear and achieve peace.

Let us dare to be different in order to make a difference. Happy Thanksgiving. Love C.B.

fear; their heads were full of confusion; their skin was black.

Over the centuries, the settlements grew from colonies to states to one nation. Industries usurped the power of the plantations; the system of slavery was abolished. The new nation welcomed emigrants from many countries and diverse ethnicities, and the melting pot became a haven for the "poor...tired...huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

And everyone lived happily ever after...right?...Wrong!

Somewhere along the pilgrims' progress, we the people lost sight of our history, our compassion, our duty. We bought into the prejudicial notion that while all men are created equal, some are "more equal" than others. While many of us continue to worship as our forefathers did, and others indulge in different "isms", we appear to have forgotten the simple assignment of each sect...to love others as we love ourselves.

Where in the story of mankind does it say that some of us are better than others? Where did we get the notion that it's all right to condemn another for his poverty, or his wealth, or the hook of his nose, or the hue of his skin? What happened to the ideals that we learned as children? Where in our march from the playground to the battleground did we lose sight of the reality of the Golden Rule? Who shortened it to... "Do unto others..."? Who says that life's a contest, and someone has to lose in order for me to win? Why can't we both win?

With a little work on our attitudes we can gain the peace that we say we want. We can let go of the fear that directs our actions and reactions, and we can take a new stand for what I call, "Love and Let Live." We get to let go of the anger and resentment that does no good. If in our dealings with others we see them as mirrors of ourselves, we can listen without judging, watch without condemning, act without expecting.

And in the spirit of giving, we get to perform for the right reasons. If we offer time or talent or assistance, we can do it for the sake of making a difference, not an impression. We can share ourselves with others and spend our energy on projects for the greater good, not our own. Instead of undermining we can strive for understanding.

As we prepare for the feast of "Our Fathers," let's give thanks for the power that we all have to really make a difference. That power is generated by our ability to love and it's manifested by our daring to step outside our comfort zone and to take the hand of our neighbor...whether that hand be red or black or white or yellow or brown. And as we hold that hand in friendship, let's forget where it lives or works or worships, and just experience the warmth of the connection to another soul who laughs and cries, feels pain and joy, just as we do.

Let us give thanks for our lives, and our loves as we forgive our debts and our debtors. Let's remember that where there is love, there is no room for hate, and that in loving we can dispel fear and achieve peace.

Let us dare to be different in order to make a difference. Happy Thanksgiving. Love C.B.

Jackson-Silver Post

Members of the Jackson-Silver Post #68 met Thursday, Nov. 19 for their bi-monthly meeting. Reports from a special committee which visited the site of the future Legion Nursing Home at South Paris: The committee indicated that the project is very much in the planning stage but still making progress. The plans at present indicate that the buildings themselves will be on a larger plot of land than originally indicated.

The first matter discussed under unfinished business was the rental of the hall and facilities. The discussion was lengthy and direct. The majority of the Post seem to feel that rental to families and friends for family occasions such as weddings and reunions should receive precedence over other opportunities for rental. The discussion closed with the motion to rent the Hall to Martha Bucus for a date in October of 1993.

Under new business it was voted that a display cabinet be made to display service awards and other memorabilia of our departed comrade Charles Mason.

It was voted to donate the use of the hall to local access television, Channel 4, for a fundraising banquet under the direction of Leah Deegan. No time was given.

There are 14 Thanksgiving baskets to be given out next week to needy families in the area.

It was voted to give the National Honor Society $100 to help them sponsor their annual Thanksgiving Dinner for Senior Citizens at the high school.

It was further voted to completely fill all the so-called "smoke eater" air purifiers in the Hall.

It was voted to give a donation to the Rotary Club for their "Christmas for Children" project.

A committee was chosen to become a committee to maintain the general overall policy for beano games. The members named to that committee were as follows: chairman-Irving Cummings, Delwin Wilson, Brian Strickland and Richard Cross, post finance officer.

Under, "For the Good of the Legion" members of both the Post and the Auxiliary met to "iron out" some differences that seem to have arisen of late. The main one is that the Post should strive to have better communications between the two groups. Both groups recognized this failure and two people from each group have been designated to inform each other of matters pertaining to each at the end of each meeting. A few other matters were informally discussed that would help a good working relationship between each group.

Meeting closed at 9:10 p.m. with prayer by Post chaplain and the retiring of the Colors by the Sgt. of Arms.

Jackson-Silver Unit

Members have been involved in numerous activities since the previous meeting, the most recent meeting being on Nov. 19.

On Nov. 8, two members attended the 100th birthday celebration of Max Poulsen at Trenton. Mr. Poulsen was a native of Denmark who moved to England as a small child and while still young came to the U.S. When old enough to do so he enlisted in the U.S. Army and served during World War I. He has been an active Legionnaire for many years.

The men of the Post did an excellent job of arranging the Veteran's Day program which Auxiliary members attended. It was tremendously moving and there was hardly a dry eye as the audience listened to Phillip Daye, W.W. I veteran, Roland Lord of W.W. II, Delwin Wilson of the Vietnam conflict and James Cobb of Desert Storm.

One of the most emotional moments came as Rev. John Grant described his feelings when, after many months of captivity by the North Koreans from the ship

Pueblo, he was being led he knew not where and, turning, saw the Freedom Bridge and the American flag. Following the program a wreath was placed at the honor roll Locke Mills, and in the afternoon four Auxiliary members accompanied members of the Post to visit veterans who reside at the Ledgeview Nursing Home.

At the Education Fair in Bethel on Nov. 13, the Auxiliary had a small display on Girls State and the Americanism Youth Conference conducted annually by Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

Three members attended the County Council Auxiliary monthly meeting at the Munda-Allen Post on Nov. 17. A special guest was Suzanne Richardson of Andover, who attended Girls State last June. She and her mother braved the slippery roads to attend the meeting and Suzanne gave a very complete report of her impressions of that program.

At the regular Nov. 19 meeting there was discussion of having a special event after the beginning of the year to benefit the local public access television Channel 4. Virginia Herrick was accepted as a new member by transfer from Ring-McKeen Unit of West Paris. Two donations of money were made: one to assist Amy Howe in raising the necessary funds to travel to England as one of the ninety U.S. students chosen to go there as members of a track team; the other, from Child Welfare funds, to assist an infant and older sibling whose father was injured while working in the woods and is now unable to work.

Also scheduled for the winter will be an initiation ceremony for those who have never been initiated and do not yet have their pins. There is a possibility that this could be held on a Sunday p.m. if it would be more convenient for people to attend.

The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 3. The one on Dec. 17 will be a Christmas party with a potluck supper, followed by a program, gift exchange and sing-a-long.

The Auxiliary continues to serve refreshments at the bingo nights, dances and toy auctions.

Albany Church wraps up season

The Albany Congregational Church recently completed a successful summer season of fellowship and worship.

He and his wife Pat provided special musical selections occasionally and their son Aaron also attended services.

Organist Edna York arranged special music and brought several familiar and new performers to the church.

IRS SIMPLIFIES PAYROLL DEPOSITS

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

If you own a business and you withhold payroll taxes from employees, get ready for some good news: the current system of payroll tax deposits is about to be replaced, and the new system will make your life less complicated.

Beginning January 1, 1993, you will be allowed to deposit payroll taxes and withholdings either monthly or semiweekly. Monthly depositors are required to deposit employment taxes and withholdings accumulated within a calendar month by the fifteenth of the following month. Semiweekly depositors will make deposits on Wednesday or Friday depending on their payday.

Another welcome change: your deposit schedule (or "status") will generally stay the same for an entire year. Your status for each year will be determined by the total amount of deposits that you reported to the IRS for the prior July 1 through June 30.

Example: Your deposit status for 1993 will be determined by the total amount of deposits that you reported from July 1, 1991, through June 30, 1992. ("This is referred to as the "lookback period.") You will be a monthly depositor for 1993 if you deposited $50,000 or less during the lookback period. Otherwise, you will be a semiweekly depositor.

If the new system still seems complicated you will be relieved to know that you don't have to determine your own deposit status. The IRS will inform you of your status before the beginning of each year. And the new rules provide a transition period, so if you prefer, you can continue to make your deposits under the old rules through the end of 1993.

What about exceptions to these general rules? For most business owners, exceptions are mercifully few. Nonetheless, there are exceptions. Give us a call. We would be happy to discuss these new rules with you.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words comfort and hope for your daily life.

Those who study the faith of children tell us that the first prayers a child utters are likely to be prayers of thanks. That may be a surprise to any mother who has stage-whispered, "What do you say?" to a three year old clutching a gift piece of candy. But it may also indicate a way in which we are to become as children in our faith.

Saying thank-you out of politeness or obligation is one thing. Praising the Source of our life, and saying "Yes" to whatever that life brings, is another act altogether. Is it possible that we can recover a child-like delight in watching snowflakes fall or skipping down the street? Can we remember how to delight in life? If we can, we may come close to the Biblical call to give thanks "always and for everything."

"For everything": there's the difficulty. Once we leave the protection of childhood, so much weighs us down, so much discourages. The hope that we'll rise in Thanksgiving even in our trials is hard to grasp. Yet, others have done it, whose burdens weighed as heavily as ours. It is their witness that speaks to me of the possibility and even the blessing of being thankful at all times and for everything.

I find one of the most telling witnesses to such gratitude in the possibilities of song, and offer an old Quaker hymn, sung by believers who were persecuted because of their opposition to slavery: "My life flows on in endless song above earth's lamentation. I hear the real tho' far-off hymn that hails a new creation. Thru all the tumult and the strife I hear that music ringing. Is sounds an echo in my soul, how can I keep from singing?"

"What tho' the tempest loudly roars, I hear the truth, it liveth. What tho' the darkness round me close, songs in the night it giveth. No storm can shake my inmost calm while to that rock I'm clinging. Since love is Lord of heaven and earth, how can I keep from singing?"

Rev. Jean Bass
West Parish Congregational Church
